Welcome to the October issue the Radio HF Newsletter. We've rolled into autumn here in the Montreal region. Cooler temperatures, shorter days and the leaves turning colour are the norm for us as we arrive at October. Happy Thanksgiving to all our Canadian subscribers. Thanksgiving is celebrated this year in Canada on Monday, October 12. The ghosts, goblins and pumpkins are showing up as well as we approach Halloween at the end of the month.
The end of the hamfest season is also approaching. In the Hamfest/Fleamarket Zone you'll see the final few events of the season listed. I'll be at the South Shore Amateur Radio Club's hamfest in Longueuil, Quebec on Saturday, October 17. If you're planning on attending, drop by the Radio HF table and say hello.

Our Monthly Special Zone for October includes web pages on Halloween as well as World Space Week, World Rainforest Week, World Food Day, United Nations Day and National Unicef Day.

This month's virtual voyage around the world, in the "Where in the World Zone", takes us to the Indian Ocean to the Seychelles. Officially the Republic of Seychelles, it is an archipelago in the Indian Ocean. The 115-island country, whose capital is Victoria, lies 1,500 kilometres (932 mi) east of mainland Southeast Africa. Other nearby island countries and territories include Comoros, Mayotte, Madagascar, Réunion and Mauritius to the south.

So on we go. Here is this month's collection of websites. I invite you to submit some of your favourite websites to include in upcoming editions of the Newsletter.

If you are new to old time radio, have a look at how the sound men created the broadcasts with sound effects. The nine minute video, "Back of the Mike", begins with a child listening to the radio and his imagination is put on the screen. The camera then goes to a 1930s era radio sound studio where the program is originating. This video gives you an insightful look at how those intriguing and astonishing sounds were created.

As a ham who has played extensively with low power operation (QRP), I have learned that developing a serious understanding of Propagation can lead to the best results on the air. Just throwing some RF up in the air and seeing where it lands will get you a few contacts, but learning how to get the upper atmosphere to work with you will fill your mailbox with many exotic QSL cards. Most books on the subject are written at the level of RF Engineering or Atmospheric Physics. Most hams get their basic knowledge from the bragging other hams do about their successes. This new book on the subject presents the practical science of propagation in language that can be easily understood by any dedicated ham. It presents the facts that those bragging ham friends left out (or didn’t really know in the first place.) Starting from the basics about how signals move by way of atmospheric conditions, the author builds to more advanced ways of making propagation work in favor of the operator. The book does not limit itself to HF propagation, it also looks at how things like Free Electron Propagation can effect and improve VHF and UHF signals. The book explains how to interpret the information found on WWV Broadcasts. There is a section on how to interpret the results found on various online services such as the “Reverse Beacon Network” and other DX sites. You will also learn how to use your receiver’s S Meter as a guide to best operating conditions. Advice is given on how various modes operate under particular conditions. Don’t forget, there are times when you want your signals to be more local than DX, Regional Net Operations for instance. A section exploring NVIS propagation will help you out with such situation. You will be hard pressed to find a more useful and practical study of this subject written specifically for the amateur radio community. Most Highly Recommended!
